DETAILED ACTION

REQUEST FOR CONTINUED EXAMINATION

The request filed on July 5, 2005 for a Request for Continued Examination (RCE) under 37 CFR 1.114 based on parent Application No. 09/783,633 is acceptable and a RCE has been established. An action on the RCE follows.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed July 5, 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

The Applicant states, "Since neither reference teaches, expressly or implicitly, a sensor device in which the sensor element is a separate element from the structural member..." The elected species of the present invention is described on pages 21-24 as comprising a "further" sensor element in the form of a second material on the element, such as a laminate layer, having a different martensite transition temperature. The structural elements of Burmeiter et al. also comprise a laminate structure with layers having different martensite transition temperatures and therefore some of its plurality of structural elements further comprise at least one sensor.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

Art Unit: 3738

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 48-49 and 51-66 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Burmeiter et al. (EP 0 759 730 B1). Burmeiter et al. discloses an implantable sensor device made of a superelastic material (col. 4, lines 31-57) which can be laminated (col. 6, lines 27-36) having a plurality of structural elements capable of expanding within an anatomical passageway comprising a sensor element that selectively detects an energy stimulus, i.e. body temperature, and responds to the detection of the energy stimulus by altering the geometry of the device body member, i.e. expansion. This expansion is inherently detectable with non-invasive radiographs, especially when using radiopaque portions or coatings (col. 11, lines 35-37). The elements can have different martensite transition temperatures (col. 6, lines 27-52).

Please Note: The energy source is not positively claimed, so because the above-cited devices are capable of "detecting" the source, they meet the limitations.
